Special units. Maximum security and law enforcement: two agents, code-named Chesterfield and Wellington, are engaged in an intricate mission: the transfer of a dangerous criminal from one prison to another. Will our heroes succeed in this arduous task?

Difficult to give a definite answer, because the road - as always - is full of surprises. Perhaps the car that has been entrusted to the mission is not in the best of states and perhaps even they are not the best special agents on the market, or perhaps they are not even special agents: special for sure, but not responsible for public order ...

So between intentional, unintentional and unexpected, stunts, gags, technical virtuositities, as well as close encounters with the public, our special agents will try to do everything possible to keep the situation under control and achieve the desired goal. Despite their efforts, the effect will not be what they want, and all attempts to restore order will inevitably lead to chaos or rather to a real public disorder.

Idea, creation and direction:
